unanimous decision in an entertaining fight in Atlantic City, New Jersey. The bout was moved to the Boardwalk because of the damage caused by Hurricane Sandy to the New Jersey shore, just days before the Nov. 12 card. "I feel confident that I will be able to beat Linares again," Jack told Fox Sports Radio in an interview Tuesday. "I feel like I'm a good opponent for him. It was one of my best fights so far. I'm a fan of Linares. He's a fighter that I admire. He's a great fighter and I'm happy for him." And Jack is looking forward to calling it quits. "I don't think it's going to be a tough decision," he said. "It's just time to move on to the next chapter and, for me, the next chapter is, well, I don't know what it is, but something else that's outside of boxing." The former Atlantic City High School standout got the call to be the WBO's No. 2-ranked contender in November. As Jack fights Linares for a second time, he faces a significant challenge in moving on with his life. Jack, a restaurant worker and father of two, is having to juggle between being a fighter and a dad. "It is something that is tough," Jack said. "When you are in the ring, boxing is all you think about. Outside of boxing, it's hard. You can't just wake up one morning, go to work and say, 'Oh, I'm just going to go to the gym and train for two hours.' You gotta go home, you gotta take care of your children. It 4bc0debe42
