An excellent application that has everything I have needed and more. I recommend it to everyone! Thanks for the software! Pros I can search by the: Year, Month, Day, contractor, customer, leak type, pressure, type of leak, and maintenance schedule. There are multiple reports to help you understand what the problem is. Cons I can get an error when I want to close a leak and close the report when I want to reopen a leak. It needs to work out these issues! Recommendations to others considering the product I recommend that you pay for the add-ons that make it easier to report leaks. A dray driver from Perth's Cottesloe train station is facing the sack after he attempted to hire a cab by paying in Bitcoin. The Cottesloe train line has a taxi rank but the app advertised "regular rates" — implying they didn't accept Bitcoin, which is now the fourth biggest currency in the world. Passengers are instead told by the app to "request a taxi". The driver attempted to pay for his ride using Bitcoin, but his request was rejected. He is now facing losing his job. When he called the taxi company he was informed the drivers are already fully booked. After he was hired, the passenger complained that Bitcoin was "worth the same as cash". The driver said he told the passenger "we accept Bitcoin, but we were telling him to phone the taxi stand". In a statement released on the Cottesloe train line's website, the operators said they provided the taxi service "due to the shortage of trained drivers in Perth". The statement said they had been unable to hire new drivers due to the high demand from customers. "As we have never provided a quote for the service provided, it's important to note that the 'regular rates' implied by the app had nothing to do with our rates," the statement read.
